

DII Industries, LLC Asbestos PI Trust

TRUST UPDATE – January 28, 2014

Ready to Process Button: The Trust has implemented a “Ready to Process” button in Trust Online so that firms affirmatively designate that a claim is ready to be processed in review or re-review. More specifically, when filing a new claim or editing an existing claim, the user will be prompted to indicate whether the claim is Ready to Process. If the Ready to Process box is checked, the user is affirming that the claim is complete, that all deficiencies have been properly responded to, that all necessary evidentiary documents have been uploaded, and that the claim is ready to review. If the Ready to Process box remains unchecked, it’s unlikely the claim will be reviewed. The Ready to Process button is located in two places in Trust Online: the finish page and the general page of the Claim Form. Claims in the review or re-review queues at the time of implementation should not be impacted.

On the Finish page, by checking this box, the user is affirming that the claim is complete, that all deficiencies have been properly responded to, that all necessary evidentiary documents have been uploaded and that the claim is ready for review.

Ready for processing - By checking this box, you are affirming that the claim is complete, that all deficiencies have been properly responded to, that all necessary evidentiary documents have been uploaded and that the claim is ready for review.

If you intend to submit this information for both Halliburton and Harbison-Walker, please check the box below. This will link the claims, and updates to either claim will be automatically applied to the other. Claims do not need to be linked and can be unlinked at any time.

* As of 11/04/2008, edits to the claim Process Option will not carry across linked claims. After initial submission, Process Option changes must be made on a trust-by-trust basis.
